- 1. Fifteen Soviet war vessels were sighted on 6 January 1952, 30 miles from Constanta. The fleet was composed of three "O" class cruisers, five "Leningrad" class destroyers, and other smaller units.
- 2. Members of an underground movement blew up a railway bridge over the Prahova river in the second half of December 1951. Shortly after that, a "powerful group" of partisans halted a Soviet train before the destroyed bridge and captured two Soviet officers who were carrying "secret letters". Large signs in Russian were reportedly posted in all important Rumanian railway stations, instructing Soviet personnel not to leave the area of the railway station during train stops.
